Construction professionals celebrated at Stormont ceremony

The importance of professionalisation in construction was celebrated at an event to mark the 100th anniversary of the Institution of Professional Engineers (IPE) in Belfast. The event was held at Stormont and was attended by a large number of construction professionals and IPE members. The ceremony was presided over by the Lord Mayor of Belfast, Councillor David Gurney, and the Lord Mayor of Stormont, Councillor David Gurney. The event also saw the presentation of awards to individuals who have made significant contributions to the construction industry. The awards were presented by the Lord Mayor of Belfast and the Lord Mayor of Stormont. The event was a success and highlighted the importance of professionalisation in construction.

Event champions EDI in NI's built environment

Around 80 representatives from Northern Ireland's built environment sector gathered on November 10 for an inspirational event on Equality, Diversity and Inclusion, organised by the CIOB in partnership with the Equality Commission of Northern Ireland (ECNI) and CITB NI. Members of the panel shared their own experiences and offered attendees advice and examples of good practice on how to begin their own EDI journeys.
